Tulsa Regional Chamber Report

Tiyhana Garrett mentioned that with the legislature still in the committee process, with a heavy volume of bills being heard, and most measures are working through their respective deadlines. As those deadlines approach, we anticipated being at the Capitol more regularly, likely beginning the first week of March. We also have our Day at the Capitol scheduled for March 9th and 10th. In preparation, we will be closely reviewing legislation connected to our OneVoice agenda so we can engage directly with members and advocate effectively on those priority issues.

OML Report

The OML report from Leslie Blair was included in the agenda packet. Ms. Adkins mentions Senate Bills 715 and 716 that are expected to generate significant discussion, so we anticipate those being closely watched and potentially contentious.

Discussion of 2026 issues and slate

Alex Adkins gave an update on the CTAG Initiate bill SB1288 by Senator Gillespie, which passed unanimously out of committee and now moves to Appropriations and Budget. The fiscal impact has been reduced from over $11 million to approximately $4 million, though further adjustments are ongoing. Discussion highlighted concerns regarding the state's 12.5% disaster match for 2024 and 2025, with confirmation that payments will not be made unless placed in statute. Members discussed delays in state payments compared to federal FEMA reimbursements, the status of the revolving emergency fund, and broader structural funding concerns. The bill has bipartisan support and key deadlines include March 5 for Committee passage and March 26 for floor action.

Members also discussed the challenging budget outlook, noting that AROA and other one-time federal funds have been exhausted. While projections are not as severe as initially expected, significant concerns remain, including Medicaid shortfalls and overall fiscal uncertainty. Most bills with fiscal impacts are expected to have titles stricken and be negotiated later in session.

An update was provided on HB4904 regarding public notice requirements. The bill would allow municipalities to proceed without restarting the entire notice process if a newspaper fails to publish a required notice on time, provided the municipality met all submission requirements. The measure is being framed as a property rights and taxpayer efficiency issue. It has passed committee and will continue to move forward.

The committee also discussed HB3045, which addresses municipal accident response fees. Concerns were raised about potential impacts on cities' ability to recover costs associated with fire hazardous material responses. The bill passed committee on a narrow vote, and discussions are ongoing with stakeholders to clarify language and protect municipal cost recover authority. Overall, members noted while this is a difficult budget year, productive conversations are occurring and several priority measures continue to advance.
