Discussion of 2026 slate

Ms. Adkins provided an update on the recent statewide and legislative elections and discussed anticipated changes resulting from the election cycle. The gubernatorial primary was highlighted as a significant statewide race, and staff noted that the upcoming change in administration could result in shifts in priorities and legislative dynamics.

Ms. Adkins reported that interim legislative studies are beginning to be scheduled, with topics including water resources, workforce development, and other issues of potential interest to local governments. She noted that the interim studies will increase in number during October and encouraged members to monitor those discussions for issues that may affect its member communities.

She also reviewed upcoming legislative deadlines, noting that the deadline for requesting bills is December 4. Because that date may be too late to adequately develop and coordinate legislative proposals, she encouraged members to identify potential legislative priorities as soon as possible. There was specific reference to the possibility of revising legislation related to disaster mitigation and indicated that CTAG would continue working with OML, the Tulsa Regional Chamber, and other partners in developing and advancing legislative priorities. Members were encouraged to provide any additional ideas for legislation that CTAG may want to actively pursue during the upcoming legislative session.
